Indiagames crosses 200 million downloads on the Nokia Store

Disney UTV's Indiagames announced that it has set a new benchmark in the app world, by crossing 200 million downloads on the Nokia Store. Impressively, the last 100 million downloads were in the past nine months.

Downloads were recorded from countries right across the world, with the top 10 countries being India, Brazil, Vietnam, Mexico, Indonesia, Turkey, Thailand, Pakistan, the Russian Federation and Saudi Arabia.

Cricket, Bollywood, Casual and Action were the top four genres of games downloaded with the top 10 games being: DLF IPL 2012, Ra.One Genesis, Aladdin: The New Adventure, Monster Truck Dash, Phineas & Ferb, Cricket Fever Challenge, Up, Cars 2, Pirates of the Caribbean and finally The Lion King Returns.

Google updates Search app for Android, introduces Google Now widget

Google has rolled out an update to its Search app for Android (for versions 4.1 and higher) that brings in various new features such as support for movie passes from Fandango and ratings from Rotten Tomatoes. It also introduced the Google Now widget, a personal assistant feature that delivers information that Google thinks you need at a specific time during the day — be it a weather update in the morning, or airlines flight status. It can be used on the homescreen or lockscreen.

Interestingly, a recent leak on the Google support page, taken down shortly, had hinted at a widget which looked very minimalist in its appearance and clubbed together relevant cards. It had references to the Nexus 4, Nexus 10 and Galaxy Nexus.

The Search app update brings real estate listings from Zillow when in the market for a home, a music button when a song is playing in voice mode (US only) and support for US college sports. Users can download the updated Search app from the Google Play Store.

Pinterest updates Android app, improves group boards

The popular image-sharing social network Pinterest, which allows users to create and manage theme-based image collections such as events, interests, hobbies and more has updated its Android app in order to improve group boards. This update on Android will upgrade the Pinterest app to the version 1.3.2 which adds better support for group boards.

Regular Pinterest users will surely appreciate the changes made to the app, as they improve the overall experience of the app and add some functionality which was lacking previously. The newer features enabled by this update gives users the option to access or ignore group board invitations. They also include a list of board contributors so that users can see who they're pinning (or adding) their content with.

It must be noted that this update has been only announced for Android users. Although, Pinterest was updated on the iPhone and the iPad a few days back, as of now there's no news about when the iOS app will have the update which improves group board features. Pinterest has also begun redesigning its website in order to make it faster and more dynamic. Check out this update on the Google Play store at <http://dg.it/YmFEw8>

Vine updated: Age-based ratings, Facebook sharing, and content reporting

After the recent issues with pornographic content, the Vine app has received an update which brings in the ability to rate content in terms of age access. Users can now set the rating for General or 17+ for the content they're about to upload.

This move comes after the photo-sharing app, 500px for iOS, added age ratings after a pornographic scare as well. Apple initially removed the app from the App Store, but was later reinstated it after 500px added the rating system.

Interestingly, it's not mandatory for users to set a rating for each video. It can easily be bypassed during the posting process, and is more of an optional feature. This is possibly been added simply to adhere to the rules of the App Store. Additionally, Vine has now included the "report user" feature as well.
