

Twitter hacked

In February, usernames, email addresses, session tokens and encrypted/salted passwords of roughly 250,000 users were hacked. <http://dgit.in/VzYeH8>

Galaxy phones unveiled

Samsung announced the Galaxy Fame and Galaxy Young, both of which may have single as well as dual-SIM versions

Ten Must-Try Android Apps

Umano

This is a great app for those who are not great fans of reading but want to stay up-to-date with news. Just select a category and have news from popular news sites read out to you – by real people. You can also share a news item on your social networks.

PicsArt

Take the best of most photo-sharing apps and present it in one single app and you have PicsArt. You can add effects, make collages, draw on photos, import from and share pictures to Facebook, Google, Picassa, Flickr and so on.

Subway Surfers

Tired of Angry Birds, Fruit Ninja and Temple Run? Even if you aren't, Subway Surfers

is a cool game to try out. The gameplay is similar to Temple Run, but here you're running, surfing, jumping over trains and trying to escape a cop chasing you while you collect coins on the way.

TED

Who doesn't like TED talks? Not only are they interesting, but they also expose us to a wealth of knowledge. This app has a great collection of over a 1,000 talks and you can either stream them or download them to your device for watching later.

Quora

This one is for all the knowledge-junkies. It has a simple layout with just Home, Notifications, Browse and Profile as the four main tabs. Follow questions, browse through questions upvoted by your friends or just explore some topics under the Browse section.

Catch Notes

Not only does it allow you to take down text-based notes, but you can also record voice memos, take pictures and add notes along with location to them. Along with this you can create separate categories for your notes and even back up your notes so that they can be accessed from anywhere on the web.

TuneIn Radio

If you're a music buff, this is one radio app you must have. While local music stations are limited, this app connects you to over 60,000 radio stations from around the world. You can select stations based upon region or genre of music. There are plenty of news stations as well. A great way to discover music and that too for free!

FXGuru

This is a cool app to add a dash of Hollywood special effects to your mobile videos. Get special effects such as a satellite crashing, a robot shooting a vehicle, a UFO hovering close to earth and so on. It gives three effect for free and you can get the whole pack of 17 effects for $8.99.

Banjo

This app allows you to integrate Facebook, Instagram, Four-square and LinkedIn and lets you know what your friends are upto based on their location. Once you specify a radius, you'll get notifications about your friends only if they're within that radius. You get a list of personalised places which change based on your friends' location. It helps you discover things of interest in any place of your choice where your friends have updated any activity. You also get to see how you're connected to people if they aren't on your friends list.

Tile Launcher Beta

So you have an Android phone, but you love the look of the Tiles interface on Windows Phone? Well, the Tile Launcher

Beta is an app which emulates the Tile interface which can be rearranged, resized, widgetized and so on. The tiles aren't live though. You just have to get your app icons on the home screen by long-pressing them and then you can modify the look and dimensions of the app or widget. [\[d\]](#)