

RADIOLAB

An intriguing radio show and podcast, Radiolab is dedicated to curiosity. It's made up of a bunch of folks tackling interesting questions – What if the moon is just a jump away? What is the history of Heimlich Manoeuvres? Is reality an ethereal, mathematical poem... or is it made up of solid, physical matter? Hope you get the drift. The discussions at Radiolab are thought-provoking, to say the least. Give it a try:

(PRODUCT LAUNCHES)

HTC FIRST

Facebook didn't reveal a Facebook-branded phone at its recent Home event, so the HTC First, in all honesty, is the first Facebook phone out there. Available with a $99 contract, it sports a 4.3-inch Super LCD screen and Android Jelly Bean <http://dgit.in/13k5MNh>

TOSHIBA KIRABOOK

The MacBook Pro retina display and Chromebook Pixel has a new rival – the Toshiba Kirabook, which sports a 2560x1440 resolution 13-inch display. It's light, powerful and promises to be an uber cool ultrabook <http://dgit.in/ZBgaMz>

PANASONIC VIEIRA ZT60

As Panasonic confirmed shutting down its plasma TV business, the ZT60 could literally be the last plasma TV of its kind. The ultimate 3D plasma TV in Panasonic's line-up, the Vieira ZT60 will definitely make heads turn <http://dgit.in/13k7deK>
