

Access Granted

Access is a database-management system that allows you to create, edit, and present a database in a variety of ways. The purpose of a database is not only to store a huge amount of information, but also to help you organise your data so that you can use it better. This chapter gives you an idea on how to start using Access.