

There are Web sites available that let you download 100 per cent legal software, movies and music. Agreed, these are few in number, but it is a beginning. Another factor that makes business sense is the downloading of software that takes place from Web sites. Using BitTorrent, this can be done much faster and also be spread to other users. Therefore, the bottomline is that P2P software can be put to good use. Will it catch on? That is a question, which can be answered only a few years on from now.
