

For your personal computer to double up as a television you would need a TV tuner card. These cards are relatively cheap and a good quality card would cost you around Rs 3,000. In addition to this you would also need a good sound card that can handle 5.1-channel sound.

(This is the minimum prescribed specification for a surround sound experience). A Creative Audigy Sound Blaster would lighten your pockets by a little over Rs 12,000. Instead of this, you could opt for a mid-range card that sets you back by around Rs 8,000. Of course,
