

Freedom with Linux

The ideology of 'free' OS is not to provide an operating system free of cost but to give users the freedom to learn in depth how an OS works and allow them to change it to their liking. Therefore this freedom comes with a lot of responsibility. Being a system administrator is not an easy task, primarily because you will be handling many servers at one time. We will not deal with that level of administration. Here, we will chew over those administration areas related to home user level.