

Donning The Mask

Just as we use masks in real life to hide, show or protect parts of our faces, so must we use them in Photoshop to give our images the same privileges. Much like selections, masks define which parts of the image will be affected by our tinkering and which parts won't. They also determine which parts of a layer will be shown and which remain hidden.