To add an image to your Web page, you use the `<img>` tag and specify a location to pick up the image file from.

```

```

The ‘src’ (source) attribute tells the browser to get the image file `image.jpg` from the ‘images’ folder for the Web site, and that it should be displayed in a 200 x 150 pixel area. While the image is being loaded, the “alt” (alternate) attribute informs the browser to display the text “Just an image”.

You can also make a clickable link:

```

```

This tells the Web browser that the image file “logo.gif” is clickable, and any click on the logo image should be directed to the home page (the “/” symbol).

This is my first homepage. This text is bold
