6.8 OpenOffice.org

OpenOffice.org is an office suite application and one of the biggest threats to the Microsoft Office Suite. A conservative estimate suggests that it holds around 10 per cent of the office suite market (the rest of course held by MS Office) with over 30 million downloads. The project started off using the code base provided by StarOffice and really took off from there.

Now though the tables have turned and many of the features present in StarOffice have been borrowed from OpenOffice.org. The OpenOffice.org Suite consists of mainly 6 components i.e. Base (database manipulator), Calc (spreadsheets), Draw (graphics), Impress (presentations), Math (for mathematical equations) and Writer (the word processor). Let's take a look at each one individually.
