

This may be detrimental to sales of your own products. Some of the ad networks like AdSense will also allow you give you some amount of control in blocking out competitor ads.

4.2.2.2 Display

Display advertising is the grand old dame of internet advertising. Banner ads, buttons, and animated graphics are the some of the type of ads which were more prevalent in the old days. While contextual advertising yields better revenue, display advertising should be a serious consideration if your contextual ads are not performing. Some of the better known display advertisers are:

AdBrite:

The screenshot shows the AdBrite website for web publishers. At the top, it says 'AdBrite Web Publishers' and 'Monetize your site with AdBrite!'. It also mentions 'As Featured In: THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, Los Angeles, RED'. The main heading is 'Get started in three easy steps': 1. Tell us about yourself and your site, 2. Pick up AdBrite's ad-serving code, 3. Place the code on your site, and you're set! There is a 'START NOW' button. Below this, it lists 'AdBrite offers...' including Text ads, Banner ads, and Active Interstitials. It also mentions 'Take control of your ad space' and 'We'll work alongside your current ad network'. At the bottom, it says 'Sell directly to your users'. On the right side, there is a preview of an ad for 'Answers.com' with the text 'Try Now! for Free. Choose From 35,000 DVD Titles - Check It Out Here.' and 'Free Trial for Answers Users Take your Presentations and Phone Calls to the Next Level!'. Below the preview, it says 'You can blend ads seamlessly into your design'.
