

Commerce

Commerce is a mix of theoretical and practical subjects. Accounts, taxation and statistics are practical, whereas other subjects such as economics, business organisation and management are theoretical in nature. Most of the information available on the Web is either in the form of news or research journals. Besides reference books, online libraries like www.questia.com allow you to view books online, but for the price of a subscription fee. Let's take a look at what commerce students can use online...