

6.1.3 Finder Windows

Finder windows are used to organise documents and applications. Finder windows have many features found in windows throughout Mac OS X. To open a Finder window, choose File > New Finder Window.

Finder can be considered to be like Windows Explorer

- The title bar at the top of the window shows the name of the folder being viewed. To move a window, move the pointer over the title bar and hold down the mouse button, then drag the mouse.
- The three buttons in the top left corner of the title bar let you close, minimise, and zoom the window. The button in the top right corner hides or shows the window's toolbar and sidebar, if it has one.
- The toolbar below the title bar provides buttons and other items to perform actions on the contents of the window. In the Finder window toolbar, the group of three buttons let you select icon, list, or column view. Type text in the search field to find your documents.
- The sidebar at the left of the Finder window shows disks and folders. Smart Folders and Burn Folders can also be added to the Finder window sidebar.
- Sometimes, at the right and bottom of a window, you'll see scroll bars. These can be dragged to see items that are not currently visible in the window.
- The bottom-right corner of many windows can be dragged to change the size of the window.

6.1.4 The Desktop

The Desktop is the area behind all the windows. It's a convenient place to put files and folders until you have a chance to organise them. Here are some other useful things to know about the desktop.
