

ShapeShifter

ShapeShifter is the WindowBlinds of the Macintosh world. It's pretty much the only software available on the Mac platform that enables you to apply skins to make OS X look better. It's developed by Unsanity, and costs a reasonable $20 (Rs 800).

Why you would want to skin your Mac is beyond us, but ShapeShifter comes to your aid nonetheless

The current version, 2.4, can only be used on Tiger. You can use Shapeshifter to tweak and apply compatible themes safely and securely. It makes a backup of your default theme, so in case you apply a theme that is incompatible with your operating system, you can revert to the default theme.

There are a plethora of themes available for ShapeShifter. You can get themes at Maxthemes.com (home to the legendary Milk theme), Swizcore.com, Interfacelift.com, and Macthemes.net.

This software replaces your system files while installing and tweaking themes, so we'd advise you to be careful while using it.

Growl

It may not sound like much, but Growl is a nifty little application that handles all those notifications that your applications keep giving you—contacts coming online in Adium, new mail, and so on. A disappointing thing is that applications need to be built with Growl support, so if your favourite

Growl lets you control application notifications