

Finding Friends

The raison d'être of a social networking site is to enable people to link up. Since most of us use the Internet extensively we have come to rely on such sites mainly to keep in touch with old friends and discover new ones, which would be infeasible if we went about it in the old way, owing to our hectic schedules. Another big draw of online social networking is that a friend in, say, Timbuctoo is as accessible as the guy next door. In this section we bring you a review of 12 networking sites. Read on to get a sneak peek into their innards.