

7.3.3 Blogg-Buzz

URL: www.blogg-buzz.com

Blogg-Buzz is a bookmarking site exclusively for bloggers. It's an interactive platform to share, discover and promote blogging. The Web site was launched by youngsters Shivarankan Bhoopathy and John TP from India in January, 2007. The site was considered a

Saving, sharing and voting of blog posts bookmarked only by bloggers

Digg clone, but the blogger focus soon ended that perception. The service is in an alpha stage, but is getting popular.

After a story or blog post is submitted, other bloggers will read it and 'buzz' it if they like it. If a post gets enough buzzes, it's promoted to the home page. The features on offer are very similar to most other bookmarking sites. You can register only after your blog is verified, so you ~have~ to be a blogger to be a part of this site.

Getting Started

Once registered, you can submit new posts. If you've come across interesting blog posts, you can submit them to Blogg-Buzz. Other users will read your submitted story and will buzz it if the story interests them. However, certain guidelines are listed which must be followed. These guidelines are that the submitted content ~must~ be a blog post, linked directly to the source, be properly categorised, have an appropriate description, and should not be a duplicate entry.

You can e-mail posts you like to your friends. From your profile