

The Proxy Server

Along with the ready conveniences that networking brings to offices, such as being able to share files, there is also the need to properly share resources (such as printers, which cannot be given to every computer). A proxy server takes care of sharing an Internet connection on a network and ensuring everyone gets what they need.