

Tables

Thus far, you have learnt how to work with text, how to arrange your slides, and how to work with figures. But what do you do when you need to display the TRP ratings of five sitcoms for seven seasons? Or how do you arrange the averages of the Indian batsmen in the past four overseas series? Tables would be the obvious answer because your audience can make comparisons and determine trends. PowerPoint has quite a few nifty tricks up its sleeve when it comes to arranging data using tables.
