

Your First Real Model

Now that you have got a fair idea about how each tool can be used, let's start doing some actual work—making an actual model. You can model anything you like, from a simple chair to a complex building.