

develop applications for the desktop, or what your application to be available offline.

So now that you can see how far AJAX reaches out, you should know where you can go to find out more. For this we have provided in the next chapter, a list of resources available for your perusal. So onward! You have places to go and things to do!

7.2 Web development software and tools

In this article, in many places we've mentioned different technologies and products, and here we list where they can be found on the web.

Web Development IDE

Name	Web site	License type(s)
Aptana	http://www.aptana.com/	Free and Commercial (Pro)
Adobe	http://www.adobe.com/products/dreamweaver/	Commercial
Zend Studio	http://www.zend.com/	Commercial
Microsoft Expression Studio	http://www.microsoft.com/expression/	Commercial and Free (Express)
Quanta Plus	http://quanta.kdwebdev.org/	Open Source
Eclipse with Web Tools Platform	http://www.eclipse.org/webtools/	Open Source