

It could increase the perception value of the company when people see that appears it has branches and clear-cut demarcations for its various businesses.

2.3.2 Hosting

The next obvious progression from domains is to look for hosting. In chapter four we'll look at reseller accounts, and you'll understand how you can make money by just selling domains and hosting. Based on a client's needs, you can suggest a plan that suits their budget. With the reseller accounts we'll talk about next, this is really easy for you to arrange for, and at very competitive prices.

2.3.3 Email

You're going to come across a lot of businesses that want an email solution for themselves. Very often, the need is only email, with no domain name or hosting even required. A lot of businesses want to have a company name domain that they send and receive emails on, and that's usually enough for them. In such a case they'd still need to buy a domain, and depending on budgets and the amount of email addresses required, you could either use Google apps to set up the email addresses, or if you have a reseller account, Apparently drivingclasses.in wasn't registered as of writing this Fast Track, so our example turned out to be a pretty decent guess...