

the extent of uncertainty. If you allow downloads from your website, you also need to consider factors such as average number of downloads per month, and average file size.

There is a way out. You don't have to get drowned in the complex formulae. Just go full throttle, so you don't have to spend time on calculating these not-so-important figures. Wouldn't you rather focus on your business?

You can do away with all this calculation by simply opting for an unlimited plan that doesn't measure bandwidth and disk space usage. When you have in abundance, you don't bother about water conservation do you? These packages are ideal for small and medium websites with moderate usage. They save you the trouble of worrying about bandwidth and/or any other parameters. So look for reseller plans with unlimited bandwidth. Some web sites could also have a cap on bandwidth. Nevertheless, if the difference in price is marginal, and you can afford just opt for the unlimited plan.

There is significant opportunity out there in tapping the potential in the web hosting market

4.2 Business models and why reseller accounts are important

Reseller accounts are a rather unknown means of earning in India. If you're planning to enter the web business and are stubborn enough to stay, then you should look for reseller accounts. Several hosting providers offer reseller accounts. This way, you not only are free from the burden of tracking your usage, but also can sell the space you have to multiple users and even earn a profit. This, by itself is quite an effective way of earning money.

As far as the business part of it goes, there are two major business models popularly known in the industry - end customer and wholesale. Within the end customer (or retail side), there are again two sub-divisions between those who sell to mass markets or large enterprises. So you can get a reseller account from a company that sells to individuals as you. At the same time, there are web sites who sell to large enterprises.

Most people simply think of creating a page for themselves and that's about it. However there is significant opportunity in tapping the potential in the web hosting market out there. In fact, you could offer hosting services for all you know.
