

friendly site around. The way you will get more and more business is by referrals. You need to go out locally and spot local businesses that are in need of a website or hosting solutions. Take along a small printed presentation which will showcase what you can do for the client. If you've been scouting around beforehand you can even customise these solutions to the particular client. For example let's take the case of say a local dentist. A dentist may require a web presence for practical purposes or even merely for bragging rights of having a website. For practical purposes it may be to display the clinic timings, services offered by the dentist such as root canals, teeth polishing, braces, etc. and other services. The website could also be designed in such a way that the dentist's clients can look at the schedule and book a slot / appointment online. This would be of great service to the local
