

6.3.2 Using testimonials

Whatever few clients you get, you should make it a point to ask them for testimonials. Testimonials are a form of accreditation that your clients give you for doing a good job. In fact, right from the start you can make your clients agree to give you a testimonial for a job well done. This way you get recognition in the industry and future clients see you as a trust worthy business.

Testimonials can also be in the form of achievements. For example you can display a star or blurb somewhere on your home page that proudly denotes “3000 plus domains registered so far” etc.

6.4 Tips for presenting your offer

What you have to offer should be clearly presented on your website. It should be done in a non-ambiguous manner. Clearly list out each and every minute thing you can offer. Be it search engine optimisation, online marketing through social media, and your core business, which is domain name registration and web hosting. Give a little thought to your pricing policy according to the needs of your customers. Make distinct packages for everyone. So for example if you charge Rs. 400 for a .com and .in domain registration it should be clearly mentioned. In fact use tables wherever necessary to denote different packages. Here is an example of a typical offer table.

Another way is to come up with innovative names that are better than simply calling it gold platinum and silver plans.
