

NANO WHAA???

Nanomaterials are defined as those materials which have structured components with at least one dimension less than 100nm. They are the building blocks of practical nanotechnology and can be physically and chemically manipulated for specific application.