years, and whether they eliminate the junkyard of electronics around us is a question only time will tell, till then we can simply curl up with the mug of coffee and lay back to play Angry Birds. What's Apple upto in the meantime? With their latest patent on touch interfaces, rumor mills are running wild with speculations of a touch iMac being unveiled sometime soon, and another patent allows users to touch and select two or more areas through your camera's view to focus on. Leave it to them to show you what all is possible through a simple touch, Apple truly has played the biggest role in making this interface as popular and usable as it is today.
