

BookMyShow

BookMyShow is the go-to app for booking tickets to movies, plays, gigs and other events in India. It shows you movie listings in theatres around you (thanks to that GPS chip in your phone), and even sorts them in the order of the ones you're closest to. Once decided, you can choose your seating right on your handheld and proceed to the multiple payment options available. After purchase, it also creates a neat little e-ticket with all the necessary details for your disposal once you're at the movie hall.

Saavn

Saavn is an India-based streaming music app. At the moment, it hosts over two million tracks for free listening to its users. The interface is relatively simple, but the design of the buttons could do with some fine-tuning. But it does the job — start searching for songs and it will throw up results; click to start playback. You can create your playlist or choose from its weekly new charts. If you can't find a song on Saavn, consider 'Gaana', a similar app that's available for BlackBerry users too.

It's also got a better-looking interface. Both have social elements where you can see what your friends are playing and share your playlists.
