

LIVESTRONG MyQuit Coach Lite

Smoking is hard to quit. This app can help you through those trying times. You can make an incremental quit plan. Once you've quit, it will start measuring how many minutes of life and money you've saved. It also has motivational content should you feel the temptation to light one up. As days go by, it recognizes your efforts and gives you badges and awards at important milestones. If you're an Android user, search for QuitNow! which works similarly. For Windows Phone users, KickSmoking is a good free alternative.

Workout Trainer

Nothing gets fat melting like a good workout session. Now, traditionally you'd probably need to go to a gym or hire a personal trainer but thanks to this app, you've got all the instructions you'll need right at home. Workout Trainer has dozens of categories to choose from to target any particular area of your body where you may want to lose weight. It has instructional photos and videos of how a workout is done and a description explaining the how and why — just BYOD (Bring Your Own Dumbbells). It will also play music from your library in the background.
