

Anchornote

Making a travel itinerary just got easier with Anchornote. Anchornote is an iOS app that enables users to make location-based notes. Simply put, it lets you attach notes to geographic locations. Anchornote lets you add text, voice and photo notes and reminders to any place on your travel map. The apps' geo-fencing ability that sends alerts of what exactly you need to see at the museum, for example, is quite impressive. With Anchornote on your phone, you'll never miss out on anything important on your travel schedule.

Google Translate

Translation apps are a great tool to have on your phone while globe-trotting. They help you bridge the language barriers and make friends with strangers. There are tons of translation apps out there but the one that's consistent and free is Google Translate. With the Google Translate app on your phone, you can translate text and speech in over 60 languages. For those using Google Translate on Android, the app offers the interesting picture-to-text feature that helps you read foreign signboards. The app offers a clean and easy-to-use interface, instant translation while typing and is absolutely free of cost.
