

calls were made using two, 36kg bulky machines that used vacuum tubes. How was it like without a mobile phone? Well, here's what Martin Cooper, one of the very first users and creators of a mobile phone had to say:

“As I walked down the street while talking on the phone, sophisticated New Yorkers gaped at the sight of someone actually moving around while making a phone call. Remember that in 1973, there weren't cordless telephones or cellular phones. I made numerous calls, including one where I crossed the street while talking to a New York radio reporter – probably one of the more dangerous things I have ever done in my life.”
