

value is displayed in a textbox where it may be modified directly or values absent from the popup list may be entered.

<progressmeter>

A progress meter is used to display the progress of a lengthy task.

<radio>

A radio button is used when only one of a set of options may be selected at a time.

<richlistbox>

The richlistbox displays a list of items where one or more may be selected. Unlike the listbox which is designed to display fixed size rows, the richlistbox may display any type of content.

<scale>

A scale displays a bar with a thumb that may be slid across the bar to select between a range of values.

<splitter>

Allows the user to adjust the division of space between elements.

<tab>

Description goes here.

<textbox>

A textbox which allows a single line of text to be entered.

<textbox multiline="true">

A textbox which allows multiple lines of text to be entered.

<textbox type="autocomplete">

A textbox which provides a dropdown showing matches that would complete what the user types. The user must select one of the options to have it filled into the textbox.

<textbox type="number">

A textbox for entering numbers. Two arrow buttons are displayed for cycling through values.