

SIRI

Change Siri's pronunciation

Siri has difficulty in pronouncing desi names. If she doesn't pronounce your name properly you can teach her to pronounce it. Just say, "Siri that's not how you pronounce that" or "you didn't pronounce my name properly" and she will ask you to teach the correct pronunciation.

Tell Siri to pronounce your name properly

Let Siri change your settings

Siri is capable to change your phone's settings like turning on/off Bluetooth, Wi-Fi, Airplane mode or adjusting screen brightness (Control Centre does a better job though). Just launch Siri and say "Turn on Wi-Fi" or "Adjust brightness".

Have a quick look on Twitter

Siri is deeply integrated with Twitter. She can tell you what's trending?, find tweets for you, or even search for hashtags. Ask her "What's trending on Twitter?", "Search for hashtag [hashtag]" or "What is [username] saying" and she'll bring it right in front of you.

Ask Siri to read your email

Old Siri could just tell if you have any new emails, but new Siri can read them for you. Just ask her "Do I have an email?" and she will come up with the list of emails you have received. To read one from the list say "Read the first one" or so. You can also ask "Read my latest email" and she'll read the latest received mail for you.

Get male voice for Siri

Siri was born with female voice. iOS 7 changed Siri's female voice and added an additional male voice too. To change Siri's voice go to Settings > General > Siri > Voice Gender > Male.

Change Siri's search engine

Bing is the default search engine for Siri, but you can ask Siri to search on Google or Yahoo as well. This isn't something that can be modified from settings, you've to ask her to "Search Google for..", "Search Yahoo for.." or "Search Wikipedia for.." to search from it.