

PHONE

Block a particular person

One of the most useful and most awaited feature in iOS 7 is the ability to block a particular person from calling, messaging or FaceTime-ing. It can be a saved contact or even an unknown number. To block an unknown person go to Phone > Recent > Tap 'i' (Info) button in front of the caller > Block This Caller. To block someone from the contact list go to Phone > Contacts > Open the contact > Block This Caller.

Review your blocked list

Head over to Settings > Phone > Blocked to access your blocked list. Here you can see your blocked numbers, you can remove them from blocked list or add new contacts to it. To add new contact to block list Tap Add New... > Select the contact. To unblock a number tap on Edit > Tap '-' button on your contact > Unblock.

Make FaceTime audio calls

Along with FaceTime video calls, iOS 7 adds the ability to make FaceTime audio calls. Do it only if you have unlimited data plan or else talk time is always cheaper. To make a FaceTime audio call, go to Contact > Select contact > Tap the 'phone' icon next to FaceTime.

After you've tapped the 'info' button placed next to an unknown number you'll see this menu

MESSAGES

Delete message(s)

Deleting messages in iOS 7 is not the same as it was in iOS 6. There is no direct 'Edit' button to select and delete message(s). To delete message(s) long press the chat bubble > More... > Select the message > Tap the 'trash' icon situated at bottom-left.

See timestamps for text message or iMessage

Unlike iOS 6, you can now see timestamp for every message you send or receive. As every text message and iMessage you send or receive has a timestamp hidden into it. To view it, swipe back from right edge of the screen within the chat history.
