Most design schools hint at an expected fee hike of 10 per cent every year. Effectively, summing all your expenses, your study at NID would cost you around Rs. 1,50,000 per annum, with an increase of between 15 to 20 per cent every year. Typical under-graduate programmes are for 4 years, while the duration of post graduate courses are typically two and half years. Similarly, a course at DJ Academy of Design appears slightly costlier, but the option to pay your yearly fees in two half-yearly instalments would be a relief to many. In addition, The Ford Foundation, Government of India and NID offer fee waivers, scholarships and grants to needy and deserving students. Also, the tuition fees for Srishti School of Art, Design and Technology, Bangalore is Rs. 1.25 lakhs per annum in addition to a non-refundable registration fee of Rs. 10,000 and a refundable deposit of Rs. 50,000.
