

Living it up

Overall, Indians have tremendous potential according to Prof. Balaram, “There is no third world. There should be nothing to stop us. Calling us a poor nation may be politically correct to some extent, but in no way is it acceptable to be called the “third world”. If the world is measured by the number of people in it, we should be the first world (referring to skilled population) while the so-called developed nations would be the third world. Indians are making a mark internationally.”

If you’ve been brooding over a career in Design, but have held yourself back why not give it a try. We’ve provided you with information to get you started. Let go of your doubts. If you don’t have it in you, these institutions would let you know for sure and you won’t sit down later in life with regret at not having tried your hand at design. Either way, you win! 🏆
