

students of opposite sexes aren't allowed to interact with each other. This hinders the development of necessary life skills.

Then comes the problem of age. A fifty year old is not exactly going to find it easy to mix with a bunch of kids in their 20s.

You get only one shot

With age comes responsibility and this means that the chances of a working professional with a nine to five job attending a marketing class scheduled at three in the afternoon isn't going to be easy. If you miss that class, then probably you can attend the same lecture in another batch, probably.

She found her's. Will you?

How far is your class?

While a lot of people make the commute or even relocate for the sake of quality education, a lot of people either give up on or settle for what's available because they either can't afford the commute, the relocation expenses or they are forced by several reasons to stay back at their place of origin. And let's not forget the institutions that are strict about a certain amount of attendance.

What are we aiming at?

Since the beginning, we have always been telling kids that if they want to be rich and successful, they need to do well in school. The idea that educa-
