

Is there a real solution?

tion provides knowledge and can be a fun process isn't being conveyed to the students. Instead they see school as something they are forced to do because otherwise they will end up going nowhere in life.

Thus, all these and many other factors are ruining the efficacy of education and what education stands for. While alternatives like home schooling and private tutors do exist, but the level of acceptance these means have been getting aren't as great as traditional schooling.
