

E-LEARNING AND ITS ADVANTAGES

The down low on education you can download.

To start off, E-Learning is about 'learning', which here means something that is done wilfully and not forced on to you. This is the biggest advantage e-learning has. If you truly interested in a subject, you will definitely become an expert if you have enough motivation. While naysayers world may go on and on about how many of the people who sign up for a course don't finish it, the portion that do complete the course are the ones that wanted to learn.

Blackboards and baby steps

E-learning really does score against the traditional system of learning and education in many aspects and the the many gaps present in the traditional system of education are neatly filled by e-learning.

The biggest downside that anybody and everybody can be expected to rattle off about why classroom don't quite cut it is the fact that the teacher's attention is shared by anywhere between 20 and 30 children. E-learning
