

of whom can be expected to abandon it, it makes more sense from a business point of view to charge a fee even if the number of people who actually sign up will be less. But then again, a masters degree of a few thousand dollars from an Ivy league college isn't something you'd think twice about taking up.

The future?

Finally, following the trend of basically everything in the world, e-learning will definitely scale itself to fit in to the palm of your hand and be accessed by your smartphone. With an entire electronics store from the 80s packed in to something smaller than half a sandwich, things are definitely going to become interesting.

Whatever the future may hold, it's certain e-learning isn't a passing fad and just like a generation was born in to a digitised world, there will soon be one that learns off the cloud. 