

POPULAR E-LEARNING WEBSITES

Upping your skill set has never been easier, thanks to a wealth of high-quality courses being offered free of cost by dozens of websites.

Remember a time when learning a new skill was almost impossible if you weren't in college? You'd either have to sacrifice your weekends and take a class, assuming such a class was available, or you'd have to resort to textbooks on the subject, which, while being more accessible, were far from ideal. Clarifying your doubts and working through difficulties was an exercise in frustration, which meant that it was easy to lose motivation and give up midway.

The use of the Internet as a medium of providing quality education changed all of that massively. Established universities such as Stanford, Harvard, Indian Institutes of Technology, and even corporations like IBM and Oracle offer online learning in the form of specialized courses. Many of these courses are structured similar to a university course, complete with instructor-guided video lectures, online learning material, a syllabus