

BACKING UP MISCELLANEOUS DATA

In our quest to back up our digital life, we often forget the little things – bookmarks, saved games, sticky notes, contacts, form data and registry entries. This chapter will show you how to never leave anything behind.

Life in the digital world is incomplete without the web. And when you're talking about the web, you're talking chaos. Just as we'd tackle any clutter, we need to form a strategy before going about finding the right backup solutions. When it comes to the web, there's no set strategy. This is because unlike operating systems, which are complex and enforce certain rules upon the user, the web browser is relatively very simple and each user can interact with the browser in different ways.

Sync your web browser

The kind of synchronising required for web browser data will differ from person to person. Take for example a contrast of two very different person-
