

EDITING ON THE WEB

Today the web is as good as an OS for many essential tools. We present you with the best editing tools that work online directly in the browser.

Today we find technology and application convergence where non-specialised hardware can take on even challenging work with the help of the cloud. In the world of multimedia editing this trend is no different. With a number of online based editing applications being freely available for users, we find no reason why even the simplest Chromebook can't edit high definition video. Letting go of
