

UNDERSTANDING AUDIO EDITING

Everything you need to know if you want to start recording audio for your projects.

There are two three types of people who would want to record audio. One type does it for their home/short movies, one type does it because they're professional VO artists and the third type falls into the category of musician.

While the ground work required to record samples is essentially the same, the nuances vary.