

IBM Blockchain starter plan

IBM has unveiled a new blockchain product that lets start-ups build their own distributed ledger projects.
<https://dgit.in/IBMstrt>

Food for thought

Study suggests that switching to a healthy diet from an unhealthy one can help combat depression.
<https://dgit.in/dietdep>

It's true that we're more into science and our bias might be showing. We will try and even out the Sci and Cult sections. As for Alt, it's not only dgt, it's supposed to be much more, but it's not always going to be heavy, because it's supposed to be reserved for mind-blowing ideas, or wacky stuff that makes you scratch your head in wonder. We have to identify those story ideas and trends, and only then do we put it into Alt.

—Robert

Hi Team Digit,

This is my first letter to you guys. I've been reading your magazine for about 8 years and It has been an amazing journey. Digit Config really helped me decide the components for my first gaming PC. The FastTracks are really good and dmystifys are really interesting. I would like to share some of my suggestions to you.

- 1) Please go back to the gaming posters or any tech related posters. You've been publishing Car Posters Since Jan 2018. I've been collecting Skoar! Posters for a long time and ever since you started car posters my collection has been on hold. I understand you have a large Audience, Not all of whom are into gaming. But is it possible to give out 2 Posters, 1 for Gaming and 1 for Cars? I would really like to see gaming posters from next month especially when Far Cry 5 is coming out this Month.
- 2) Please look into your Price listings in your Digit Config and Tech Review. The Prices are way lower than I've seen them for. Ex: Take Digit Config March 2018 under Mid-Range Gaming->Ram->Corsair Vengeance 2666 MHz 8GB x2 is priced at ₹8370. I've Seen it go for as much as ₹8k per stick and as low as ₹6k per stick. As you can see the price you've given is really off from its actual market price.
- 3) It would be great if you have a page like "Tips and Tricks for Photoshop and Premiere Pro" every month. It would really help those who want to start a YouTube Channel or Edit videos. (Just one Page of this.)

- 4) You could add a Section like "Trending" and list out all that's been trending that month (and do this every month). For ex: Music, Memes, TV shows, Movies etc. (Again just one page of this.)

Thank you for being so awesome, keep doing what you're doing and have an amazing year ahead. :D

—Anek Anil

Two posters instead of one? We're very much in favour of giving more gaming posters or even two instead of one, however, we are constrained by the cost. The way we see it, we've been giving game posters for a really long time and the motorheads were being neglected for a long time. In a way, they've been feeling exactly what you are experiencing. However, feedback like yours is what helps us figure out what to give next. The more people voice their opinions about what poster they want, the easier it becomes for us to meet your needs.

As for the RAM pricings, you should know that RAM prices have been all over the place over the last year. Prices fluctuate every two days and we hit a peak in India in early February, as of now, RAM prices are falling. However, I don't believe you noticed that we've used 2 DIMMs in that configuration instead of 1. This is necessary to get dual channel working which affects performance. So if you get a single DIMM of 8GB, it will be cheaper but the performance loss is simply not worth the money saved. Which is why we use two and hence, the higher price.

The reason why we don't make a series out of the Tips and Tricks section is because not everyone is interested in the same thing every month. So we'd be doing a disservice to our readers if we covered the same thing over and over again. If you're really into Premiere Pro, then we'd like to suggest that you check out Adobe's site for some really well done video tutorials.

While we don't do trends for the simple fact that while a topic might trend when we write about it, they cease to do so by the time the magazine comes to you. However, we do have an article at the beginning of each section of the magazine called "What's New" which chronicles the biggest trends of the previous month. It's not exactly what you're looking for but it comes close.

—Mithun

Hey Digit, I'm a very old reader, and used to read Digit at my BBA college library and also in my MBA college library. Now I purchase Digit myself, and I am not satisfied because you give too much information about bla bla bla....

You only include one or two mobiles/laptops. The market has many more launches in various categories, but you still show less gadgets.

You take around 10 pages for a cardboard fun cover story, but it's useless to me, instead please give us 10 pages of laptops and mobiles.

DVD is good videos, but you can add on paid android apps and lots more, but you don't.

Now I won't buy the April issue of Digit, and will see your YouTube Videos instead.

—Rajul Rami

We're sorry you don't like our content. We cover mobiles and laptops extensively on our site digit.in, and it's a very volatile vertical, with changes happening all the time. For the magazine we prefer to cover only the top mobiles and also PC products, as we consider the magazine to be more for geeks than simple buyers of technology.

I am sorry to inform you that we will actually be trying to do more DIYs in the future, so we will have to accept the bitter truth of not being able to please everyone. I hope you will continue to read our mobile content on digit.in. We cannot give paid Android apps on the DVD it's illegal to do so, or else we would certainly comply with your request. I thank you for taking time out to write to us, and we realise that even negative feedback comes from people who are emotional about this brand, even when they are unhappy with it.

—Robert