RATHER THAN TRAVELLING TO A NEW CITY MIND-LESSLY,

it's always best to make use of an existing itinerary or prepare one by yourself. At least you'll have planned your journey without having to waste time on picking the next destination on the spot. However, your trips can be made much more efficient than you think. It usually starts from picking your destination and then searching through travel blogs to get recommendations. After you're done picking your destination, it comes down to booking your hotel at the most appropriate location at the most affordable prices. It's natural you'd be visiting various places, so it's always best to pick a hotel which isn't too far from the tourist spots. Packing the right stuff is pretty important too. You wouldn't want to reach your hotel room and find out that you forgot to carry your phone charger cable. Not just that, there are several essential items that you should be packing with your luggage, so making a list is essential.

If you're visiting a foreign country or a region with a different language than the ones you know, you might face issues in communicating with the locals, reading signs and even sometimes finding your way around. The number of things you could do to make your life easier on a trip is endless. Ultimately, your objective should be to spend more time on admiring the location and not beating your head with packing, planning and communicating. Read on to discover ways in which you can enhance your travel experience using different apps.

BOOKING TICKETS

When you're done picking your destination(s), the first financial setback is booking your travel tickets. Whether you're travelling by train or flight or bus, you should book your tickets way in advance to get the best prices. You will find several apps out there for booking tickets and functionally, they don't have much of a difference. Essentially, any of the popular apps such as MakeMyTrip, Yatra, ClearTrip, etc., can be used. Our objective was to find a booking app that allowed us to seamlessly book tickets. We weren't really looking for an app that offered something more than that. We found Yatra to provide these little features that make your booking experience quick. If you're booking your flight tickets then you can verify whether the flight is on time and also perform web check-ins. As we mentioned earlier, from a booking point of view, the process is almost the same on the . So, when it comes to making a decision about choosing a platform to go ahead with, it's all up to you depending on which interface do you prefer the most.

PACKING ESSENTIALS

Unless you create a list of the items you need to carry for your trip, it's highly possible that you might miss out on packing something. If it happens to be an important item, you'll have to buy the same item after reaching your destination and eat into your travel budget. To avoid any such problems, you should give PackKing a try. Initially, we thought of recommending a good to-do list app. However, what if you don't know what you need to carry? Well, PackKing provides a curated list of items that you should be carrying based a few factors. Before presenting the list, it will ask you certain questions to narrow down the items. It collects information such as your mode of travel, weather of your destination and finally, what are you packing for, ie, what type of activities will
