

digit diary

If you are ever curious about what the Digit gang is up to, this is the place to get all the inside info. From the latest game we're obsessing about to the newest intern we're driving up the wall – it's all here folks.

Did you read this month's dmystify on ISRO? Well, we had to make a dmystify on one of the premier research and development agencies in the country. However, did you know that we were planning an entire issue on ISRO? Well, that's how we started off in the month of June by emailing and calling every single phone number we could find on the internet that would get us some access to researchers and scientists who've actually worked on ISRO projects. Unfortunately, the red tape led us nowhere and we had to change up, and we'd say it happened for the better because you now get to read about a lot more things related to India rather than just our space missions.

Disheartened, each of the guys moved on and sought refuge in something else. Aditya dove back into Warframe, Manish got into Vampyr and Abhijit spiralled deep into the world of mobile games testing all the game controllers. Arnab, however, remained mostly unaffected and dove head-first into the world of audio products. In the land down under, Robert decided that he'd had enough of Perth and flew down to Adelaide for a week of fun a relaxation with the family, meanwhile Mithun went off to a press junket. Essentially, everyone was so engrossed with what they were doing that a little thing called the Digit magazine completely slipped past.

It was the calendar reminders that sent a jolt of reality down every-one's spine and thus began yet another frenzied closing.

Frenzied closings are known to push folks over the edge and that's exactly what happened a couple of times this month. For starters, Manish can be seen poking his nose into the way Aditya plays Warframe (he prefers to take his time and enjoy the game) and we can see Aditya teetering at the edge of his sanity as each of his moves are questioned by Manish. And it certainly didn't help when he hears Mithun criticise Apple products with a fervour that would put most politicians to shame. Aditya believes that we don't give Apple a fair chance, the thing is we don't give any brand a fair chance. Criticism shall be belted out when due.

Consistency is often a sought after virtue, except when it comes to the Mumbai rains. It seems with each passing year mother nature turns a shade more cruel and the punishment she has meted onto our beloved city has not gone unnoticed. And when it pours, Mumbai floods. And when Mumbai floods, the folks in the Digit Test centre vent their frustration on each other. Which reminds me, it's been a while since I've pestered anyone ... gotta get my fix ... gotta go ... WAAAAAARGHH!!!

QUOTE OF THE MONTH

Let me play Warframe the way I like it.

—Mahamani

DISCUSSIONS

Every month we will highlight some of the more interesting discussions happening on our Digit Forum (digit.in/forum). Head over and join our forum if you want quick answers to your queries from some of the geekiest Indians online. In case you love giving gyaan, or even if you love arguing with others, the Forum is the place you should be.

Writer's corner

<https://dgit.in/write>

A new sub forum to share writing tips, prompts, and improve your writing by getting feedback from the community. Desmond David has posted a short story called "The Pandemonium".

Google's $5.1 Billion fine

<https://dgit.in/ggleu>

Is the fine fair? Isn't it trivially easy to change the default search engine? If Google stops, will it drive the cost of devices upwards? Don't all OEMs do it? All these issues are discussed.

Pothole Solution

<https://dgit.in/potplast>

Dr Rajagopalan Vasudevan has come up with an innovative solution of using waste plastic as a binding material for roads that can survive the monsoons without getting potholes.

Join the discussions at:

Web: geek.digit.in | Forum: geek.digit.in/community | Facebook: facebook.com/digitgeek