SAGAR VEDPATHAK
DC ACTION FIGURE COLLECTOR

DAYJOB: CIVIL ENGINEER

What made you start your collection?

As a child, I used to collect GI Joes as any other kid back in the 90s. However, as I grew up I forgot about them. On one visit to a game store in a mall, a particular Batman figure from the Arkham City game caught my eye. I couldn't get it at that point, but my wife gifted the same to me on my birthday which was 10 days later. That is where my collection restarted. Since then, I don't think my family members have gifted me anything other than action figures.

How can someone, today, start building a collection like yours.

While I was initially clueless about how to pursue my passion for collecting action figures, soon, I discovered helpful Facebook groups like Indian Toy Collectors (ITC) and Action Figure Fanatics India (AFFI). In AFFI I met some amazing friends who have guided my collecting journey. To start off, you have to decide if you want to collect all types of action figures or follow a certain theme or universes like DC, Marvel, Anime, Movies, Cartoons and more. After that, one needs to be patient as action figures in India can be really expensive. Being a part of AFFI can be really helpful in finding good deals. Even though I started my collection by choosing only Marvel and DC, I soon realised that the scale was too big and filtered my preference down to DC. One of the things that most newbies need to remember that quality is of a greater priority than quantity.

Something missing from your collection that you would go to any lengths to acquire?

Two statues from Iron Studios - a 1/10th scale Hawkman and a 1/10th scale Kilowog.

Where do you see the action figure collecting scene going in India?

While sources were few and expensive when I started off, now there are a lot of avenues to obtain figures and statues in India. On top of that, we have our own comic con, multiple comic book stores like the Entertainment Store, Nerd Arena along with Facebook groups like AFFI, ITC etc. Due to all these factors, I believe that the action figure and toy collecting hobby is growing in India and becoming easier to pursue.

Any problems you've faced?

Most of the times, space is an issue. One of the main purposes of having such a collection is displaying it, however, it becomes an issue to always maintain a separate cabinet or room for the same. Apart from this, most community members today face a lack of family support. Most people think this is a childish pursuit.
