OnePlus 6

With OnePlus 6, the brand further pushed itself towards 'premium' materials and design, besides the flagship specs and optimized stock Android experience being the mainstay. And, from the looks of it, Digit.in readers are sold on this one.

Xiaomi Mi A2

Another stock Android smartphone (we're seeing a pattern here?), this one is quite popular in the affordable segment and does pretty good when it comes to camera performance in the sub 20K segment.

Moto G5s Plus

Yup, it's not the latest Moto G6 that's popular with our online audience. It's the previous offering that continues to rake in good numbers. We recon it has a lot to do with the fact that the Moto G5s Plus comes with a faster Snapdragon 6 series processor over the Snapdragon 4 series chip in the Moto G6. Something that Motorola should fix with the new Android One devices.
