

Electric cars by Dyson

Dyson, designer and manufacturer of household appliances, has announced plans to build electric cars in Singapore. <https://digit.in/nov18-65-1>

A Niceberg!

NASA has discovered a perfectly rectangular iceberg floating on the east coast of the Antarctic Peninsula. <https://digit.in/nov18-65-2>

EMPIRE UNCUT

This is a Star Wars fan film that is a lot of fun to watch. The film was made through crowdsourcing. The Empire Strikes back was split into 15 second long bits, and fans of the series from around the world were asked to claim a clip, and shoot 15 seconds, using whatever resources they had at their disposal. Puppets, claymation, animation, and live action all mashed up together makes this a truly surreal experience. The Star Wars Uncut project is going ahead and making the other movies as well, and you can participate!

THE HOBBIT: THE TOLKIEN EDIT

Peter Jackson's The Hobbit trilogy took quite a few departures from the relatively short book. The Tolkien Edit is a fan cut, that takes all the three movies and compresses it into one four hour long movie, that tells the story as close to the original Tolkien book as possible. The filler scenes, the love triangle, skirmishes between orcs, and the White Council taking on the Necromancer at Dol Goldur have all been thrown out. The result is a crisp story that moves along as fast as a sledge drawn by Rhosgobel Rabbits.

TIE FIGHTER

We know this is the second Star Wars movie on the list, but it simply had to be included considering how good it is. TIE Fighter is a short film that shows an engagement between the Empire and the Rebel Alliance, through the viewpoint of a TIE Fighter pilot. The animation is in the style of 80s Japanese Anime, and the Empire never looked better on screen. The animation is supported by a rocking score. It took over four years to create this animation, and the only real problem with it is how short it is.

PORTAL: NO ESCAPE

Set in the Portal universe, the entire film is set within the premises of Aperture Laboratories, with plenty of references to the games. The protagonist is kept in solitary confinement for a long time, and then comes across a portal gun. Once she gets the gun though, things get really, really exciting. We have only seen the portal gun being used in first person perspective. Seeing it in use as a part of a choreographed action sequence, along with the stunts and camera movements that come along with it, is a totally different experience.

TRUTH IN JOURNALISM

In this fan film, the story of Eddie Brock is told in the style of the Belgian mockumentary comedy, Man Bites Dog. The film is shot in black and white, has jerky camera movements, and is the perfect method to tell the story of Venom. There is actually some pretty good vfx work that has gone into the production, which only improves the experience. The film keeps you on your toes, and goes into some unexpected places. Some of the sequences may look a bit comical and over the top, but it only adds to the charm. d