HEALER

Medical emergencies and magical injuries are aplenty in the wizarding universe and a healer is essentially a wizarding world equivalent to a doctor. A famous place in the universe inhabited by a large number of healers is the St. Mungo's Hospital for Magical Maladies and Injuries.

Healers treat some seemingly-bewildering maladies (to us 'muggles' anyway) such as Dragon Pox, spattergroit and vanishing sicknesses. Potions are essential for healers since a significant amount of their treatments are administered through whipping up a magical concoction or potion like Skele-Gro (regrows bones), Blood-Replenishing potion (to cure the fatal effects of blood loss), Wiggenweld Potion (wakes up someone from a magically induced sleep) and many more.

PROFESSIONAL QUIDDITCH PLAYER

Quidditch comprises of multiple elements and players which make it an immersive and a complicated sport which takes skill and practice to master. It involves two teams trying to achieve the most points by the end of the game. The Golden Snitch is a golden flying ball that is extremely agile and difficult to spot. The Seekers on both teams strive to capture this ball worth a 150 points. Catching the snitch also ends the game and usually crowns the team that caught it as the winner. The Chasers, mimicking Strikers in football, attempt to get the Quaffle into the hoops, the Keeper, equivalent to the goalkeeper, tries to deflect the Quaffle from the hoops while the Beaters, mimicking defenders in football, try to beat down the Chasers of the opposing team with Bludgers, extremely finicky and violent balls.

MAGIZOOLOGIST

Also known as wizarding naturalists, a person does not need to have graduated from a wizarding school to become a magizoologist. Newt Scamander is a world famous magizoologist who has written Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them, a mandatory textbook for the students of Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry.

Magizoologists are similar to muggle zoologists, and the beloved character Rubeus Hagrid can also be called a magizoologist since he teaches the subject that caters to this practice. A dragonologist, like Charles 'Charlie' Weasley is a magizoologist that specializes in the study of dragons. Luna Lovegood is another well-known character in this field, although she is referred to as a wizarding naturalist.

PROFESSOR

A professor at wizarding schools and institutes has a wide range of powers including awarding or deducting points for good conduct or misconduct, giving detention, prohibiting students from accessing certain areas or even allowing certain students access into prohibited areas themselves.

Professors directly report to the Headmaster or Headmistress, and are often specialists and abundantly gifted in their particular field of academics. Several major characters of the Potterverse such as Albus Dumbledore, McGonagall, Snape, Hagrid, Lupin, etc., are professors. Neville Longbottom became a Herbology professor at Hogwarts after forgoing his position in the Ministry of Magic as an Auror. A
